

Story Impact and Intensity

Scenes in Scryla can include two optional narrative signals:

Story Impact: the type of narrative event happening in the scene (for example: Revelation, Confrontation, Fallout).

Intensity: a rough indicator of how dramatically significant the moment is (for example: Low, Medium, High).

These signals help you visualise pacing and structure, especially when using Timeline View.

At one o'clock, the Ghost of Christmas Past appears in Scrooge's bedroom and draws him from his bed, announcing that the journey is for his welfare and reclamation. They pass through the wall and into the countryside of Scrooge's childhood, beginning the exploration of memory and emotional origins.
